Director's Note:

Over seventy years ago, MGM Studios took a popular fairy tale and created one of the most memorable movie experiences of all time. Tonight, the legacy of L. Frank Baum's timeless story is again retold, this time live on stage. What is it about Dorothy's quest for "home" that has enchanted generation after generation to follow their dreams? In today's endless pursuit to climb corporate ladders, possess the newest technology, or desire to achieve success, many of us have lost the idea of "home." For some, "home" is a career or relationship; for others a physical place long forgotten by years of crowded schedules and missed opportunities.

I asked our cast and crew during the first production meeting what "winning" would look like for our show (having been raised in a family of athletes, I know that the sign of a successful program is a team that wins). Some felt the number of tickets we sold would demonstrate a "win", while others felt a standing ovation at the end. However, at our last rehearsal I asked the students again what would be the sign that our production was a successful "win". This time the answer was much clearer; "Taking our audience back home" was the overwhelming response. Tonight's production is just that, a journey back home.

There are so many people who deserve our thanks, please see the back of the program for those who have given of their time and resources so that tonight's presentation would be possible. For now, I would like to especially thank you- our faithful audience. Thank you for taking the time out of your busy schedule to be here with us tonight. Our cast and crew are one of the finest groups of students I have ever had the privilege of working with and I am so thankful for the opportunity to have given leadership over this endeavor. Whether it is a person, place, or fond memory, our hope tonight is that you will rediscover that no matter where life takes you, there truly is "no place like home."

Break a Leg Cast & Crew!
